Applications Must Include Information Regarding Law School's Commitment to Transactional Law Training. Applications That Do Not Include The Information Specified Below Will Not Be Considered. Please attach the following:

- (1) Information about your law school's commitment to transactional law training through courses, programs, participation in regional and national transactional law competitions, internal competitions, clinics, and other experiential learning opportunities.
- (2) Information about the individual who will serve as the competitor's coach for the competition and whether the competitor's coach will accompany the competitor to the competition in person. A school's commitment to providing a faculty member, adjunct faculty member, or practicing lawyer to serve as the competitor's coach and accompany the competitor to the competition in person will be a significant factor in the selection process.
